Crawfordsville Electric Light & Power receives national award for community service

WASHINGTON, D.C., June 8, 2020 — Crawfordsville Electric Light & Power in Crawfordsville, Indiana, received an American Public Power Association Sue Kelly Community Service Award during the American Public Power Association’s Public Power Connect: Virtual Summit & Business Meeting. The award recognizes “good neighbor” activities that demonstrate the commitment of the utility and its employees to the community.

Crawfordsville Electric Light and Power (CEL&P) prides itself as not just powering its community but also serving as a true community partner. The utility shows every day that it is dedicated to serving its customers beyond power supply. CEL&P makes it a point to begin educating children early on electric safety. The utility has its own electric demonstration kit and travels to local schools to provide demonstrations to children. CEL&P sponsors and attends several community events to support Crawfordsville’s business community and its residents. This year is CEL&P’s 130 year anniversary, and the utility is planning several events each month through 2020 to bring awareness to public power and celebrate with its customers. Events planned include a coloring contest, a "Fill the Bucket (Truck)" food drive, tree giveaways for Earth Day, movies in the park, open houses, solar park tours, lunch on the plaza, a community clean-up day, and a school supply drive. CEL&P doesn’t just provide a service to the community; they are part of the community, integrally woven throughout the places, events, and memories.

The American Public Power Association is the voice of not-for-profit, community-owned utilities that power 2,000 towns and cities nationwide. We represent public power before the federal government to protect the interests of the more than 49 million people that public power utilities serve, and the 93,000 people they employ. Our association advocates and advises on electricity policy, technology, trends, training, and operations. Our members strengthen their communities by providing superior service, engaging citizens, and instilling pride in community-owned power.
