Energy Northwest Former CEO receives individual achievement award

New Orleans, La., June 19, 2018 — Mark Reddemann, former CEO of Energy Northwest in Richland, Washington, received the James D. Donovan Individual Achievement Award at the American Public Power Association's national conference in New Orleans, Louisiana. This Award recognizes individuals who have made significant contributions to the electric utility industry and to public power.

Mark has always upheld the highest ideals in public power. Under his leadership, the Columbia Generating Station set nuclear generation records from 2012 to 2014, and again in 2016. Mark was active on numerous boards — including the Nuclear Energy Institute, the Association of Washington Business, the Tri-City Development Council, and the United Way of Benton and Franklin Counties. Energy Northwest has been recognized nationally by POWER magazine and Victory Media. In 2016, Energy Northwest won the Employer of the Year award from the Association of Washington Business. Mark remains a passionate supporter of excellence in the electric industry.

The American Public Power Association is the voice of not-for-profit, community-owned utilities that power 2,000 towns and cities nationwide. We represent public power before the federal government to protect the interests of the more than 49 million people that public power utilities serve, and the 93,000 people they employ. Our association advocates and advises on electricity policy, technology, trends, training, and operations. Our members strengthen their communities by providing superior service, engaging citizens, and instilling pride in community-owned power.
